DOCUMENT DONOR FORM

If you have records relating to Dorset people and places, you can help preserve our heritage by completing this document donor form

What we collect

The Dorset History Centre collects both published and unpublished material that relates principally to the history of Dorset, is unique and of long term historical value. We collect:

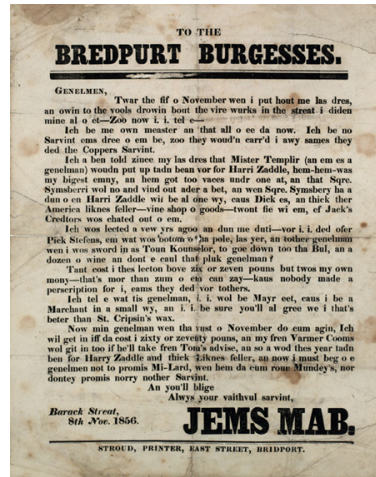

- Published works in which at least 25 per cent of the content relates directly to the history of Dorset or some aspect of life within Dorset
- One copy of a published work and perhaps also a spare copy for very popular works
- Unpublished material including (such items as letters, photographs, minute books, diaries) that is unique, relates to the history of Dorset and is likely to be of long term historical value. As part of this assessment we would ask: will these documents be of use to local, family or house historians in one hundred years time?

If you have records you think may be of interest, why not get in touch with our Collections Manager or Duty Archivist?
